Chicago-Style Citation Quick Guide

http://www.chicagomanualofstyle.org/tools_citationguide.html

The following are examples of the more common citations. When in doubt your final word is the Chicago Manual of Style, the official website, and your professor.

The Chicago Manual of Style presents two basic citation systems. The following examples are based on The Notes and Bibliographies or Humanities Style. Consult your professor for preferences.

Notes and Bibliographies (Humanities Style)

The note reference follows the passage to which it refers and is marked with a numeral. Notes are arranged numerically either at the bottom of each page (footnotes) or at the end of the manuscript (endnotes). Notes include complete bibliographic information when cited for the first time. The bibliography lists only sources used in writing the paper. Entries are arranged alphabetically by author's last name and include complete bibliographic information.

The Chicago Manual of Style allows a shortened note when the reference has a full bibliography reference. Shortened notes are also used for subsequent footnotes (see below). Full note examples are given below as well as "following footnote" or short note examples.

Shortened Citations (Chicago Manual of Style, sections 14.24-31, p. 667-70)

For Subsequent References to the Same Source:

When you cite the same work in a subsequent reference, use only the author's last name and the page number. In cases of two authors, use both last names. In case of more than two authors, use the first author's last name and the abbreviation "et al." for the remaining authors. In the case of an article or book without an author, use a shortened title and page number. In addition, you may use the Latin abbreviation "Ibid." when referring to a "single work cited in the note immediately preceding." (Chicago Manual of Style, section 14.29, p. 669).

If your bibliography includes more than one work by the same author, the shortened form must also include the title or keywords from the title.

NOTE: Section and page references to the Chicago Manual of Style are given for each example. When applicable, the most current examples are from FAQ about The Chicago Manual of Style.

Journals/Magazines/Newspapers

Journal Article, Print

14.175-14.198, pp. 730-38

Chicago Manual of Style recommends furnishing all elements of a citation (volume, issue number or month, year, page numbers) when possible as a hedge against an error in one or another of these elements. However, the issue number can be left out if the paging is continuous throughout the volume.

Newspaper Article with Author

14.203, pp. 739-40

News items from daily papers are rarely listed separately in a bibliography when using this style. In a work containing both a bibliography and notes, citations to specific items may be given in the notes or in the text and not listed in the bibliography

Note:

11. Tanya Kerstiens, "Pick a Color: Children of Mixed Race Struggle to Find Identity," Bellingham Herald, sec. C1., January 10, 1999.

Following footnote:

12. Kerstiens, "Pick a Color."

Page numbers are omitted because of the variety of editions with different page numbering. Include the edition where given, such as "final edition" or "Eastern edition." For example:

13. Teri Karush Rogers, "A Wall to Enlighten, Not Obstruct," New York Times, July 6, 2005, late edition.

Newspaper Article without Author

14.207, p. 741

Note:

14. "Pakistan: 50 Years of Upheaval, Corruption and Civil War," New York Times, August 15, 1997, sec. B7.

News items from daily papers are rarely listed separately in a bibliography. When a bibliography reference is needed for an article with an anonymous source, use the following example where the name of the newspaper comes first:

Bibliography:

New York Times, "Pakistan: 50 Years of Upheaval, Corruption and Civil War," August 15, 1997.

Online Newspaper Article from a Database

14.271 p. 763

Note:

15. Christopher Gray, "Mrs. Waldo's Mysterious Mansion," New York Times, October 10, 2010, late edition, ProQuest Newspapers.

Bibliography:

News items from daily papers are rarely listed separately in a bibliography. (See previous examples.)

Citations Taken from Secondary Sources

14.273. p. 764

The Chicago Style discourages using a secondary source. However, when the original source is not available, references to the work of one author as quoted in that of another must cite both works.

Ask for assistance at the Reference Desk in Haggard 2, when you need help locating an original work. We may be able to get the source through Summit or Interlibrary Loan.
